Nevada Stands For The Flag

Senator Massey has taken his plunge into the limelight with a ringing declaration against the proposed outrage of submitting to the dictation of Great Britain in waiving tolls on the merchantmen of all nations availing themselves of the Panama canal. The stodgy little solon from the sagebrush country is not going to stand for any molly-coddle tactics. He is for the strenuous life and protection of American interests. That's the way Nevada stands. This is the gallant state which saved the republic from the menacing guns of John Bull during the Civil war by pouring a flood of gold and silver into the empty coffers of the nation, and the conduct of the newly inducted statesman from Nevada places him right in line with those who went before him to inspire the confidence of Lincoln. If the canal is to be free for all, then it is reasonable to inquire why should this country be burdened with the cost of the improvement. The bonds of the great waterway which links the Pacific to the Atlantic were not floated through the assistance of any European country, but were placed at home and absorbed by the thrifty savings of American yeomen. The $300,000,000 came from Americans who subscribed through patriotic motives. They were anxious to see the flag redeemed from the servitude of the coast trade and flung to the breezes of the world's commerce. They gave their money freely for that purpose and, should they find they have been bunched by any diplomatic twiddle doe and twiddle de dum, they will visit their revenge on those whose un-American sympathies are leading the people into the snares and pitfalls of the natural enemies of the United States.

Change in Appearance

Within the next ten days it is planned by the management of the Bonanza to issue a six-page paper in lieu of four pages as has been the size since this paper came into existence. In issuing a daily six-page affair it is necessary that this publication have the support of the merchants, otherwise the idea would not be possible. Since the recent disaster that came near putting the Bonanza out of business, the Tonopah merchants have been extremely considerate, and it is with the hope of continued assistance in filling the advertising columns that the old four-page daily will be abandoned and the six-page paper inaugurated.

It is through the columns of a newspaper that the prosperity of a city is heralded to the outside world. A prosperous appearing paper can always be depended upon to represent a prosperous community, and in this light it can be stated that a six-page paper will acquaint the outside world with the fact that Tonopah is on the map to stay and will be transacting business for years to come.

Pending the appearance of the six-page paper the Bonanza is forced to ask the reading public to be lenient as to the small amount of reading matter that appears daily. With the paper enlarged it is hoped to make up for the present deficiency, but in the meantime we ask our subscribers to be patient with us.

The Bull Moose convention that opens in Chicago Monday will prove the outlet for the delivery of many speeches. Roosevelt will be nominated without a fight, but nevertheless his few admirers will take the opportunity to turn loose manuscript after manuscript in calling attention to his record, and thus cause additional labor for the now overworked telegraph operators who will be forced to read the speeches that they might be transmitted over the wires.

Republicans and democrats will hold meetings tonight in an endeavor to secure candidates to fill the party tickets for the coming primaries. In years past it has been necessary to take action to keep many office seekers off the ticket for fear of swamping the ballot. Everybody nowadays is busy watching the stock board and politics in a secondary consideration.

The Bull Moose will follow Jack Johnson into retirement in the near future.

GROUCH AGAINST MINING EXPERTS IS DISPLAYED

SALT LAKE WRITER EXPRESSES HIS OPINION AS TO MINING ENGINEERS

It is not known what the mining experts have done to Will C. Higgins, but in his column in the Salt Lake Mining Review he touches them up in the following entertaining fashion:

"Some experts are born, some are made and some are turned out by colleges and universities," continued the prospector. "But it is only the ones who are born that are any good. The rest of them become famous for the many good mines they turn down. It was the made-to-order expert that turned down Tombstone in the early days. It was the same order of duckling that passed up the Silver King mine in Arizona, and the United Verde in the same state. The same nifty fellows condemned Cripple Creek, Tonopah and Goldfield; and, even now, they are swarming over the country spilling big mining deals and losing big money for their clients; and it is a wonder, judging from the black eyes so many mining districts are getting from them every year, that the industry keeps up its lick so well and that so many new mines are developed into big producers and dividend payers. Of course, this statement is as perplexing to you as it is to the man of means who really wants to buy a promising property; but, any man with nails in his shoes and a grease smear across his face can readily solve the riddle. Ask him and he will tell you that it is the man who works in the mine, who broke the first ore from the outcrop, and who knows the formation like a book, that is the real expert. And he will tell you also that it was an 'intelligent miner' and not an expert, who induced Senator Clark to buy the United Verde; that it was the success of leasers which prevailed upon Philadelphia capital to invest in Tonopah, and that it was a grizzly prospector who first commended Goldfield prospects to eastern capitalists; and that all of these mines have made good, notwithstanding the fact that buyers were duly warned by expert friends and employers that they were being handed gold bricks."
